

Doculink and Glendale Library, Arts and Culture present:

"WHAT'S FAIR ABOUT FAIR USE AND COPYRIGHT?"

HOW FAIR USE AND COPYRIGHT LAW

AFFECT DOCUMENTARY FILMMAKING AND ONLINE VIDEO CREATORS.

Attorney Art Neill of New Media Rights will give a workshop on how Copyright law both restricts and empowers documentary filmmakers and other video creators.

Art Neill is the founder of New Media Rights in San Diego and practices public interest law in the areas of internet, intellectual property, and communications law. He is an adjunct professor of law at California Western School of Law in San Diego where he teaches Internet & Social Media Law (primarily focused on Internet, Intellectual Property, licensing, and online publishing law). www.newmediarights.org/

Art will cover key legal issues in filmmaking, including

The basics of copyright law, including how it protects your work, and how it restricts what you can do with others' work

How to reuse video footage and images under fair use (Fair Use permits use of copyrighted works without permission under specific circumstances)

When and how to get a license for music, footage, and other materials
How to properly use openly licensed (Creative Commons) materials
